PUSHING THE GREEN ENVELOPE AT CARLTON CITY HOTEL SINGAPORE

Singapore, 8th September 2017 – Luxurious hospitality and eco-consciousness go hand-in-hand at Carlton City Hotel Singapore. Situated in a historical district of Tanjong Pagar and within the Central Business District, the upscale business hotel encourages its guests to reduce their ecological footprint and to be part of their environmental-friendly practices, such as reusing their linens and towels, maintaining a recommended room temperature and minimising waste.

Through its efforts, the hotel has decreased its annual water consumption by 30% from 2014 to 2016. The energy consumed was reduced by 5.42% over the span of three years. Green walls are also featured prominently to give a sense of nature within the architecture.

In August 2017, Carlton City Hotel Singapore received its second consecutive Singapore Green Hotel Award, a prestigious accolade awarded by Singapore Hotel Association alongside Building and Construction Authority (BCA), National Environmental Agency (NEA), PUB, Singapore's National Water Agency, and Singapore Tourism Board. The hotel is also certified as a Green Mark Platinum hotel, the highest rating for green buildings in Singapore, since its inauguration for its environment-friendly practices and green innovations.

The hotel also takes part in the worldwide initiative Earth Hour annually since it opened in August 2013.
