PUSHING THE GREEN ENVELOPE AT CARLTON CITY HOTEL SINGAPORE

Singapore, 11th September 2019 – Luxurious hospitality and eco-consciousness go hand-in-hand at Carlton City Hotel Singapore. Situated in a historical district of Tanjong Pagar and within the Central Business District, the upscale business hotel welcomes its guests to be part of their environmental-friendly practices and reduce their ecological footprint together.

Examples of such practices include “Green Cards” which are placed beside the bed and hung on the towel rack, encouraging guests to reuse their linens and towels and opt out of daily bedsheet changes. Guest room lavatories also feature hand basins which fulfil 3 ticks under the Water Efficiency Labelling Scheme (WELS) and toilet bowls that offer a half flush function so as to reduce the unnecessary usage of water. In a bid against energy consumption, the bedrooms function with extensive LED lighting whilst the air-conditioning within the bedrooms is maintained at a recommended temperature.

Since going green comes from within, staff areas are also taken into consideration, with light sensors and hand basin sensors within the washrooms. Furthermore, both bicycle lots and electric charging stations are provided in the carpark. Green walls are also featured prominently to give a sense of nature within the architecture.

In August 2019, Carlton City Hotel Singapore received its third consecutive Singapore Green Hotel Award, a prestigious accolade awarded by Singapore Hotel Association alongside Building and Construction Authority (BCA), National Environmental Agency (NEA), PUB, Singapore's National Water Agency, and Singapore Tourism Board. The hotel is also certified as a Green Mark Platinum hotel, the highest rating for green buildings in Singapore, since its inauguration for its environment-friendly practices and green innovations.

The hotel also takes part in the worldwide initiative Earth Hour annually since it opened in August 2013.
